

PRICES OF CORN FEED MAY GO TO NORMAL SHORTLY

A sudden drop, with prices nearly down to normal, is expected in the corn and feed markets as soon as the first shipments of the feed arrive from the coast. People in close touch with the corn market look for a drop of $25 dollars a ton as soon as the ships begin to unload the mainland stuff. At present, corn is quoted on the market at from $75 to $82 per ton. In normal times corn sold for $32. Coast shipments, it is believed, will bring the feed down to at least $45.

At the Territorial Marketing Division, it was announced that the last shipment of melons from Maui will arrive Sunday. This shipment will clean up the fruit on that island. For the past several weeks melons have been received at the market in quantities of 500, and are selling now at four cents a pound, retail. Beef is scarce, as is every other article of food, due to the droughts on the other islands. The ranchers are held up because of the unusual dryness. Eggs are selling at 80 cents a dozen, and there is no prospect of a decrease in the price. Coast eggs are selling at 55. Eggs generally take a rise in price about this time of year, and are due for a slump around Christmas. There will be a scarcity of all foodstuffs, especially beef, corn and fruits, until the dry spell is broken.

The feed corn market is due for a quick drop, say those in close touch with the situation. Advice from the mainland state that an enormous corn crop is looked for, and this will mean a material decrease in price. The local dealers are not buying any island corn for the reason that the other island raisers are holding out for too big a price. When mainland corn jumped to $85, the island growers immediately boosted their prices, with the result that many of the city purchasers have refused to buy anything but mainland feed. When the looked-for drop in mainland corn arrives, the local farmers and ranchers will be forced to lower their prices or lose their profits entirely.

The cause of the corn slump, if there is one, will be due to the enormous crops which are being reported throughout the states. Wheat, barley and oats will be lower, say the merchants, as will be most of the grains within a short time.

A deputation is coming to London from Holland in order to discuss with the British government questions affecting the Dutch sea fisheries.

DRYING BEST METHODS OF KEEPING BANANAS, FOOD COMMISSION LEARNS

That drying is the best method for preserving bananas for food purposes is the information given the territorial food commission by H. P. Kingsbury, manufacturer and shipper of citrus fruit products, of Redlands, Cal. In part, Mr. Kingsbury's reply to a query from the commission reads as follows:

"Our experiments with the drying of potatoes and other vegetables shows that practically anything can be dried and if handled right, can be made to retain its original color and flavor, as well as its entire food value. We have dried potatoes, carrots, beets, turnips, string beans, tomatoes, egg plant, cabbage, rhubarb, squash, parsley, celery and peppers in the course of our experiments. "We are of the belief that a better quality product can be obtained by drying under vacuum with a low degree of heat and we therefore got into touch with the Buffalo Country and Machine Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., and we are asking them to send you a letter and sheet from their catalogue covering their vacuum shelf dryers. "This concern has furnished dryers for drying bananas in the tropics and the very best quality of banana fig ever produced was made by these machines. As to the other methods, you have no doubt tried the ordinary apple evaporators; then there is the Fresh island eggs have advanced a dozen. The demand for island eggs is still greater than the supply. Island chickens are a little more plentiful than they had been for a few weeks, but the prices have remained the same.

Sweet potatoes are moving fast at $1.25 wholesale and the division could handle more first class sweet potatoes. If any one has sweet potatoes, now is the time to ship them to the market. Evidently all the Ewa sweet potatoes are being sold in the country as none of them have been shipped to the Honolulu market.

The price of watermelons has dropped a little during the past week and the marketing division is receiving large shipments of very good melons from Maui.

Hides have dropped 2 cents a pound during the past week, which has been the first change in prices for several months.

Tomatoes have advanced 1 cent a pound and there are not many good tomatoes in the market.

NORMAL CLASS MAKES WAR BREAD AND GARMENTS FOR ALLY SOLDIERS

Culinary Dept. Feeds 663 Boys and Girls; Industrial, Household Arts Featured

Just how simple it is to make "war bread" and help conserve America's wheat flour supply, is being demonstrated by the domestic science classes at the territorial Normal and training school. Forty-four loaves of "war bread" are being baked each week, and are made either of rice flour, rolled oats, graham flour or corn meal. One day each week is devoted to the making and baking of corn meal and graham muffins.

The culinary department is fast becoming a popular feature of the Normal school work. It was here the 5-cent school lunch had its inception, and the 663 students at the Normal school are able to purchase substantial lunches at noon, which avoids the bother of bringing lunches to school. On the first day of school this month 516 lunches were served. Miss Otremba is in charge of the culinary department and the baking of war breads is being watched with interest by Mrs. A. C. Alexander, chairman of the woman's committee of the territorial food commission.

Aside from the baking of "war breads," the Normal school is doing another "bit" through its sewing department. Red Cross work is being carried on there to a certain extent by Miss Otremba, under the direction of Mrs. Henry Damon, prominent in local Red Cross work. Wara rags and pajamas for soldiers are being made daily.

There are 663 students at the Normal school this year and Principal Edgar Wood says that the 1917-18 term is going to be one of the most successful in the history of the institution. The enrollment is divided as follows: Seniors, 56; juniors, 50; sophomores, 106; freshmen, 148; trades one to eight, 303. Thirty per cent of the seniors are high school graduates.

Particular attention is being given this year to household arts, including sewing and domestic science, and industrial arts, including gardening, chicken raising, bee culture, wood-working, printing and plumbing.

The industrial department is now self-supporting, chairs and desks are made and repaired, all furniture needed in the school is made in the shops, the students make all repairs about the school buildings, and all school printing is done in the shops. In the gardens the soil is prepared and crops planted and cultivated. Chickens are raised and cared for for school use. The bee culture is carried on only by the students.

sun drying method on trays in the open, either sulphured first or not; and the hot pan method, same being a jacketed pan with hot water in the jacket; this also with an electric fan blowing on the fruit and vegetables, which helps in the rapidity of drying by carrying off the moisture, and lastly the chamber or box with a vent at the top and bottom and with coils of pipe carrying steam which raises the temperature in the box to the highest point. Some vegetables do better if "blanched" first, that is, put into boiling water for from three to 10 minutes. While we have gotten passably good results by all these methods, we believe that the vacuum idea is the best and therefore recommend it.
